Karen Taylor, Registered Mental Health Nurse (RMN), has 16 years of experience in the National Health Service (NHS) in England with older people and adults of working age. She has experience designing, implementing and managing innovative community care services.

After leaving the NHS, she worked with her voice hearing husband Ron Coleman, bringing the hearing voices approach to Italy, Australia, NZ, France, Hong Kong, USA, and Canada, and running recovery house projects. She is experienced in working with families and believes real healing happens when dialogue happens.

Recovery from psychosis is possible for everyone. People can learn to understand their experience and move on. This should be a human right for anyone given this label!

Karen has co-authored the workbook, “Working to Recovery,” and has been involved in introducing recovery training into Australia, New Zealand, Palestine, Denmark, and Italy, as well as throughout the United Kingdom.

Based in Scotland, Karen is the Director of Working to Recovery, Ltd, alongside Ron Coleman. Karen and Ron are passionate that recovery is for all, including workers. Together they travelled the world, telling their story of recovery and spreading a message based on hope. They challenged mental health service workers, family members, and people with lived experience to review their roles and embrace recovery for all.

Karen has a Diploma in Practical Spirituality and Wellness, and is a trained spiritual companion.
